Kim,

As you may recall when we voted to suspend the IAB, I asked about continuing work on the Immigrant Resource Center – which is a program idea the city council has already supported conceptually speaking in more than one vote. The sticking point has always been a more detailed model of how it might be run, such that a funding proposal could be developed. Last year the City hired a consultant to gather input from the community at large, to assess the need, the interest, and the possible range of services that might be offered.

What is the status of that work?

When might the IAB resume?

I am asking because the lack of news on this front may itself become the news. Thanks in advance for whatever information you can provide.

Best regards,
